Note:

- This indicator reports the percentage of women who do not obtain prenatal care during their first trimester of pregnancy. This indicator is relevant because engaging in prenatal care decreases the likelihood of maternal and infant health risks. This indicator can also highlight a lack of access to preventive care, a lack of health, knowledge insufficient provider outreach, and/or social barriers preventing utilization of services.
- *Does not include Cass or Pottawattamie counties, for which birth counts were too low for calculations.

- Notes: ● This indicator reports the rate of total births to women under the age of 20 per 1,000 female population under 20. This indicator is relevant because in many cases, teen parents have unique social, economic, and health support services. Additionally, high rates of teen pregnancy may indicate the prevalence of unsafe sex practices.
- *Does not include Cass or Pottawattamie counties, for which birth counts were too low for calculations.

- US Department of Agriculture, Economic Research Service, USDA - Food Access Research Atlas (FARA): 2010.
 - Retrieved August 2015 from Community Commons at <http://www.chna.org>.
- Notes:
- This indicator reports the percentage of the population living in census tracts designated as food deserts. A food desert is defined as low-income areas where a significant number or share of residents is far from a supermarket, where "far" is more than 1 mile in urban areas and more than 10 miles in rural areas. This indicator is relevant because it highlights populations and geographies facing food insecurity.
